100-HOOK VAULT

100 Fill-in-the-Blank Opening Lines
Organized by Trigger Type

The complete swipe file for creators who understand that the first line is the only line that matters.

HOW TO USE THIS VAULT

This vault contains 100 fill-in-the-blank opening lines organized across the 7 scroll-stop trigger types identified in the Hook Science Guide. Each hook includes:

The hook text

The fill-in-the-blank opening line itself. Brackets indicate variables to replace with your specific details.

The fill note

What to replace, and guidance on making the hook specific to your niche or content.

The emotion tag

The primary emotional state the hook is designed to activate in the viewer.

Usage protocol:

Do not try to use all 100 hooks at once. Choose one trigger type per week. Write 5 hooks from that section for your specific content before posting anything. Test two versions of the same content with different hooks and track 3-second retention. The hook that wins — use it as a template for the next 10 videos in that trigger type.

The brackets [like this] are variables. Replace them with real data from your own work.

The most powerful hooks in this vault are the ones you complete with your actual results, actual tools, actual timeframes. Generic specificity is still generic. Your numbers, your experiments, your proof — that is what makes these hooks yours.

TRIGGER 01

Pattern Interrupt

Break the expected. Force the freeze.

These hooks work by violating the viewer's prediction about what comes next. The brain pauses because it cannot auto-process the unexpected input. Use these when your first frame or first word needs to jolt attention.

How to use: Lead with the interrupt (silence, contradiction, mid-sentence drop-in). Always deliver something valuable after the interrupt — pattern interrupts without payoff train viewers to skip you.

[3 seconds of silence] ...This changed everything.

Fill note: Replace 'this' with your specific insight or result.

EMOTION: SUSPENSE

002

Stop. Before you post another video — read this.

Fill note: Direct imperative creates a command interrupt.

EMOTION: URGENCY

003

I deleted everything I built. Here is what I learned.

Fill note: [Replace with your specific reset moment]

EMOTION: CURIOSITY + SHOCK

004

EMOTION: INTRIGUE

006

Wait — before the algorithm buries this...

Fill note: Implied urgency + platform conspiracy signal.

007

[No intro. No music. No hook.] Just this.

Fill note: Meta-interrupt — names the absence of the expected format.

EMOTION: DISORIENTATION → ATTENTION

008

Most creators are about to make a very expensive mistake.

Fill note: Future-tense threat with implied insider knowledge.

EMOTION: ALARM

009

I was wrong about [topic]. Here is what I missed.

Fill note: Self-contradiction from a confident source forces attention.

EMOTION: HUMILITY + CREDIBILITY

010

The video I almost did not post is my most important one.

Fill note: [Replace topic with your specific subject area]

EMOTION: BETRAYAL → TRUST TRANSFER

013

This is the part of the process the gurus skip.

Fill note: Names a structural gap in authority content.

EMOTION: RESENTMENT + RELIEF

014

Before I show you [outcome], I need you to understand something first.

Fill note: [Replace outcome with your deliverable]

EMOTION: ANTICIPATION

015

I am not going to tell you to post more. Here is what actually works.

Fill note: Direct contradiction of dominant advice.

EMOTION: RELIEF + AUTHORITY

TRIGGER 02

Status Threat & Status Gain

Move toward elevation. Move away from diminishment.

Status hooks work because human beings are wired to monitor their position in the social hierarchy. Content that suggests a viewer is missing something critical (threat) or could rapidly advance their position (gain) fires primal attention circuits that predate the algorithm.

How to use: For status threat hooks, target systemic failures — not personal ones. "Most creators" not "you specifically." For status gain hooks, be specific about what the elevation looks like. Vague gain promises slide past.

016

The thing successful [creators/builders/founders] know that you were never taught.

Fill note: [Replace bracket with your specific audience]

EMOTION: INADEQUACY → CURIOSITY

017

While you are posting, someone in your niche is building something that will make your content obsolete.

Fill note: Competitive urgency without naming the competitor.

EMOTION: COMPETITIVE ALARM

018

Most people in this space are one tool away from being outpaced.

Fill note: Implies a knowledge gap that will cost them.

EMOTION: THREAT + URGENCY

019

The creators who will still be here in 3 years are doing one thing differently.

Fill note: Future-frames the threat as survivability.

EMOTION: SURVIVAL INSTINCT

020

If you are still doing [outdated method], you are already behind.

Fill note: [Replace with the specific outdated method in your niche]

EMOTION: THREAT + DISPLACEMENT

This is what separates a $27 course creator from a $10,000/month brand.

Fill note: Status ladder made visible with specific dollar markers.

EMOTION: ASPIRATION + GAP AWARENESS

022

While everyone else is chasing views, builders are doing this instead.

Fill note: In-group / out-group separation with clear elevation signal.

EMOTION: TRIBAL ELEVATION

023

You can get 10 million views and still make $0. Here is why.

Fill note: Contradicts the dominant status metric (views) with a real one.

EMOTION: DISILLUSIONMENT → NEW METRIC

024

The gap between creators who earn and creators who perform is one decision.

Fill note: Frames the status split as a single pivot point.

EMOTION: AGENCY + OPPORTUNITY

025

If your content does not build your brand off the platform, you are renting attention.

Fill note: Status reframe: ownership vs. renting.

EMOTION: THREAT + AWAKENING

026

I made this for free. The agency quote was [$X]. This is the gap you need to close.

Fill note: [Replace $X with a real anchor number from your work]

EMOTION: STATUS GAIN VIA TOOL KNOWLEDGE

027

Most people wait until they have more followers to start building. That is the mistake.

Fill note: Challenges the waiting behavior that keeps people low-status.

EMOTION: URGENCY + PERMISSION

028

Here is what high-ticket brands do on day one that struggling creators never do.

Fill note: Status ladder defined by behavior on day one.

EMOTION: REVELATION

029

The reason your audience is not buying has nothing to do with your prices.

Fill note: Relieves price anxiety while creating a new curiosity gap.

EMOTION: RELIEF + INTRIGUE

030

Reach does not equal influence. Here is what does.

Fill note: Decouples the dominant status metric from real power.

EMOTION: REFRAME + AUTHORITY

TRIGGER 03

The Curiosity Gap

Open a question they cannot answer without watching.

Curiosity is not passive interest — it is psychological discomfort. When a viewer becomes aware they lack information they feel they should have, the brain activates a resolution drive. These hooks create that gap deliberately. The gap must be specific and answerable — vague gaps feel like bait and build resentment.

How to use: State the conclusion before the method. Make a specific counter-intuitive claim. Ask a question the viewer cannot answer from prior knowledge. Never answer the gap in the first frame — the unanswered question is what holds them through the video.

031

The reason this video has [X million] views has nothing to do with the content.

Fill note: [Replace X with a real viral video view count from your niche]

EMOTION: GENUINE PUZZLEMENT

032

I asked [AI tool] to write my content strategy. It told me to stop posting.

Fill note: [Replace AI tool with Claude, ChatGPT, or the specific tool you use]

EMOTION: DISBELIEF + IRRESISTIBLE LOOP

Fill note: Counterintuitive cause-effect creates irresolvable curiosity.

EMOTION: GENUINE PUZZLE

039

Fill note: Names the existence of a named concept without revealing it.

EMOTION: GAP + ANTICIPATION

040

I studied 100 viral videos and found one pattern they all share. It is not a trend.

Fill note: Research claim with a specific output that must be discovered.

Fill note: Two-part gap: the warning + the reframe. Both must be resolved.

EMOTION: DREAD → RELIEF

045

Here is what happened when I stopped making content for 30 days.

Fill note: Specific experiment + implied unexpected outcome.

EMOTION: EXPERIMENT + RESULT

TRIGGER 04

The Tribe Signal

Name your people in the first line.

When content explicitly addresses a specific person in a specific situation, members of that group experience a recognition response — the content has seen them. This is not demographic targeting. It is identity mirroring. The tribe signal works because of exclusivity: the viewer feels specially addressed, which increases the social weight of the content.

How to use: Be specific about situation, not just identity. "If you are Black" is a demographic. "If you are building a brand rooted in ancestral wisdom with no team and no agency budget" is a tribe signal. The more specific the situation, the more intensely members of that situation respond.

046

If you are building a brand on TikTok with no team and no studio — this is for you.

Fill note: Situation-specific tribe signal for Lab audience.

EMOTION: RECOGNITION + BELONGING

047

Fill note: Behavior-based tribe signal (shameless, non-judgmental).

EMOTION: RELIEF + RECOGNITION

053

For the builder who is done consuming content and ready to produce something that lasts.

Fill note: Transition signal — marks a stage shift in the viewer's journey.

If you have a skill that your community needs but no system to turn it into income — this is the system.

Fill note: Gap identification as tribe signal.

EMOTION: PROBLEM → SOLUTION BRIDGE

Fill note: Philosophical distinction creates an elite in-group.

EMOTION: INTELLECTUAL AFFILIATION

Fill note: First-generation wealth builder tribe signal.

EMOTION: WELCOME + SAFETY

TRIGGER 05

Proof of Craft

Show a result so good they assume it costs money.

The Proof of Craft hook operates on the gap between perceived production cost and actual resource investment. When a viewer sees a result that exceeds their expectation of what is achievable without professional resources, they must resolve the cognitive dissonance. The resolution — discovering the accessible method — is the reward the content promises.

How to use: Always show the result first. Never reveal the constraint (free, fast, no team) before the viewer has seen the output. The sequence is: high-quality result → reveal the limitation → promise the method. Reversing the sequence lets the viewer mentally discount the quality before they see it.

I made this [show cinematic result] with free tools in [X hours]. Here is the exact workflow.

Fill note: [Replace X with your actual production time]

Fill note: Before/after structure makes the transformation concrete.

EMOTION: BEFORE/AFTER RECOGNITION

TRIGGER 06

Specificity Shock

Precise numbers create instant credibility gravity.

The brain processes specific numbers differently from general claims. Specific, odd numbers — $4,327, 11 days, 3 tools — activate the truth-evaluation system more strongly because they feel like measured results rather than estimates. This creates what cognitive psychologists call "processing fluency disruption" — the brain pauses on the unusual precision before moving on.

How to use: Replace every general claim with the most specific version you can defend. Round numbers feel estimated. Odd numbers feel measured. Always pair the number with a second specific — time + dollar amount, number of uses + hours saved. Never fabricate specificity. One successful fact-check destroys everything you built.

TRIGGER 07

Visual Mismatch

When the image and the text contradict each other.

Stroop interference — the cognitive disruption caused by conflicting information streams — is one of the most reliable attention mechanisms in psychology. In short-form video, visual mismatch deploys this deliberately: what the viewer sees and what the text or audio communicates create a contradiction the brain must resolve. That resolution demand holds attention.

How to use: Build the visual to exceed expectation (cinematic AI quality, high production aesthetic) and let the text reveal the constraint ("$0," "no team," "free tools"). The mismatch must resolve in the viewer's favor — they should feel they discovered something remarkable, not that they were misled. For MAAT, the aesthetic IS the proof.

[Cinematic AI video plays] 'This cost $0. Three free tools. Here is the system.'

Fill note: Visual quality exceeds resource claim — the core MAAT Lab mismatch.

EMOTION: DISBELIEF + EXCITEMENT
